I joined Masters' Union because of its philosophy of learning by doing. Experiencing this first hand still astonishes me since I have learnt immensely through its hands-on curriculum. Multiple CXO sessions such as the one with Kavin Bharti Mittal, founder and CEO of Hike, helped me grasp insights about how to build businesses and take risks. A learning that I would not get access to anywhere else.

Shaily Dangi

I believe that the value Masters' Union offers with their practitioners and industry experts as faculty distinguishes learning from others, even those abroad. Learning Art of Communication from Mihir Mankad, a Harvard professor, was a transformative experience. I interacted with Mr. Niren Chaudhary, Chairperson of Panera Breads, in a CXO session and learned facts about Indian markets that I would not have known had I gone to any other institution. In terms of safety, I have nothing to worry about. The hostel especially has great security.

I never planned to study in India. My goal was always to pursue higher studies abroad. However, as a last-minute decision, I applied to Master's Union—the only college I considered in India. Looking back, it turned out to be one of the best decisions I've ever made. Master's Union stands apart because of its unique approach to education. It's not about rote learning or endless theories. Instead, they focus on teaching business by doing business. From working on real-world projects to engaging with industry leaders, every experience is practical and relevant. The curriculum is designed to ensure that students are prepared for the challenges of the real world from day one. This hands-on approach transformed me. I developed not only the knowledge but also the skills and confidence to navigate the complexities of business. Master's Union doesn't just teach you—it empowers you to lead and succeed. What began as an unplanned choice has become the most defining journey of my life.

I chose Masters' Union over prestigious schools like NYU Stern, Emory University, the University of Michigan, and Duke University—despite a SAT score of 1550—because I wanted a business education that connects with the Indian market. The focus on practical learning here is unparalleled, and learning from industry practitioners provides insights that traditional programs can't match.

I'm currently working on my own ventures, and what I love about Masters' Union is the tailored resources and mentorship that help turn ideas into successful businesses. The program takes real-world applications to a new level, allowing me to apply classroom knowledge directly to my business projects.

Studying architecture wasn't a one-day decision; it was a long-held interest that developed over time. However, what I never considered was whether I wanted to pursue it as a permanent profession. That's when I started leaning towards business. I have always valued practical skills over theoretical knowledge, and when I came across Masters' Union's curriculum, I was sold instantly. The best thing about Masters' Union is the network they have and the exposure they provide to each student.

When I first heard about Masters' Union, I knew it was the right fit. With its focus on hands-on learning and real-world experiences, it offers opportunities I haven't seen anywhere else. I chose to stay in India after the IB, seeking more than just a degree—something that would challenge me. Masters' Union gave me that, offering a practical business education rather than a traditional one. These four years will shape my growth in ways no other college could. The experience of learning by doing gives me confidence for the future. Masters' Union is my launchpad.

Despite having acceptances from Canada and New York, I came to Masters' Union. It was a last-minute decision. I did not know much about it; however, my mom was persistent that I fill out my form. After a week of constant pressure, I ended up applying. The video part was a little tough, and I was new to the experience, but it showed me how different they are. Later, I went in for their interview and cleared it. I still remember my first day of orientation. The first speaker we heard was Pratham Sir, and oh God, was I not excited for it! I realized that this sudden change of events was one of the best decisions I ever made. And well, Masters' Union turned out to be better than all the universities I got acceptance letters from abroad.

I joined Masters' Union because I wanted to be in a place that doesn't just teach, but transforms. The chance to learn from industry leaders, work on live projects, and collaborate with a network of driven individuals fuels my passion to think outside the box and challenge the status quo. It's not just about gaining expertise; it's about building the skills and mindset to drive change and make an impact in a world that's constantly evolving. I'm here to grow, to push myself, and to be part of something bigger."

I chose Masters' Union over other Indian colleges because I wanted to learn something real over the 4 years in my undergraduate education. Upon interacting with my seniors who studied at the other top colleges, I learned that learning was all about rote learning concepts from books to clear the exams, only to forget those concepts later. I immediately knew that I didn't intend to waste my 4 years doing this. The practical approach to learning was one of the major considerations for me. Hence, I chose Masters' Union over all other colleges."

University Admits (India)

There is no other regular college that has this kind of integration of both technology and business in the course curriculum. Although a closer alternative is liberal arts, the value offered through practitioner-led learning, CXO sessions and access to management is far better. Additionally, I get a degree from Delhi University which opens up all paths for me post my graduation.

Seerat Virk

Class of 2027

-  Jayshree Periwal High School, Jaipur
-  seerat.virk@mastersunion.org

At Masters' Union, I chose an unparalleled learning journey over Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies and Ashoka University. Unlike other colleges, here I can experiment, make mistakes, and learn exponentially. In six months, I've honed skills from selling INR 1 lakh worth of goods within 8 hours! I have negotiated with vendors, built websites, managed inventory and logistics, and learned digital marketing. Currently, I am juggling 3 internships, heading events, and building two businesses, simultaneously. It's a non-stop, exhilarating journey of perpetual learning and enjoyment.

-  maanya.agrawal@mastersunion.org
-  www.linkedin.com/in/maanya-agrawal/

University Admits (India)

Although I was accepted into several prestigious DU colleges and even cleared the IPMAT Rohtak exam, I ultimately chose Masters' Union because of its prime location, extensive exposure, and networking opportunities crucial for placements. Engaging in the dropshipping challenge during the first semester, where I independently generated revenue of INR 10 lakhs, I gained practical knowledge and exposure to the real world, which no other college would give. Moving away from home I was worried about the safety but all premises are fully secured with CCTV cameras everywhere.

I've always sought opportunities that push me to think beyond the traditional, and that's exactly what I found at Masters' Union. Just days before the application deadline, I discovered a program that combines hands-on learning with mentorship from top CXOs and founders—a perfect fit for my aspirations. While institutions like Ashoka, and NMIMS were strong options, MU's unique approach to education immediately stood out. The opportunity to learn from experienced professors and industry experts was something I couldn't pass up, and every day spent here at Masters' Union has been an enriching experience, allowing me to make the most of it!

Atishay Jain

Being surrounded by CXOs and at the heart of 'Corporate Gurugram,' while learning from the best, is what caught my eye when I first discovered Masters' Union. The thrill of running my own dropshipping business in the first year and exploring the realms of business through real-life experiences is just the sweetest cherry on top. Being at Masters' Union for these past few months has opened my mind to countless new ideas and industry insights that I couldn't have found anywhere else. From having your accounting lectures taught by a Shark Tank India founder to having batchmates who've made it onto Shark Tank India, saying life at Masters' Union is engaging would be an understatement. Looking back at myself 12 months ago, I just wish I could tell him—You made the right decision.

I chose Masters' Union over other colleges because I realized that the value and exposure this institution offers are unmatched. Securing an AIR 50 in the CET-IPU or gaining admission into Delhi University did not deviate me from my goal of becoming independent as an undergraduate and Masters' Union truly facilitates and inspires me to achieve my goal. While the other universities I was admitted to are extremely prestigious, the modern learning approach and unique ecosystem at Masters' Union were what always caught my attention.

I had cleared 4 of the 5 IPMAT papers, had a final IIM convert but I chose Masters' Union given the practical pedagogy and experiential learning here. I have had the opportunity to learn from professors of Harvard, Stanford and CEOs of unicorn companies, something I wouldn't have gotten at IIMs. Over the past 1 year, I've become way more skillful. I am confident that over the next 3 years I will grow exponentially. Best decision I've made!

Myra Bansal

-  www.linkedin.com/in/myra-bansal-20a6591b4/

University Admits (India)

I chose Masters' Union over other colleges in India because it aligns perfectly with my vision for personal and professional transformation over the next four years. My primary goal is to move beyond theoretical knowledge and immerse myself in a practical, hands-on learning environment that mirrors real-world business scenarios. I wanted a program that taught business concepts and allowed me to experience them firsthand. Masters' Union stood out for its focus on experiential learning, where industry leaders guide students through live projects and real challenges.

My vision for myself was to start something of my own. It was the premise with which I started shortlisting my colleges. I was very happy to get selected at the best Indian colleges. However, the interesting thing is that just 12 days before joining another college, I attended the Startup Weekend at Masters' Union. Here, I was shocked by the learning methodology and decided that this college perfectly aligns with my vision. I told my parents and they agreed! This is how I got into Masters' Union.

I chose Masters' Union over other options for two reasons. Firstly, I felt that the fees colleges abroad charge is not justified. The value I can get from Masters' Union is higher at a much lesser cost. Secondly, I also had the option of choosing IIM Ranchi; however, I felt that while their MBA is good, the three-year undergraduate programme before that is not. Additionally, similar to IIMs, I have the option to pursue a five-year Integrated Programme at Masters' Union, which allows me to complete my postgraduation at the end of five years.

Dropping out of Christ University, Bangalore and joining Masters' Union has been a pre-eminent decision that I will never regret. After coming here, within just a few months, I was able to secure four positions of responsibility and also land a founder's office intern role in an FMCG company. I have been able to learn things such as sales, marketing, operations, and negotiations in a practical way, rather than just reading about them in PDFs. Masters' Union has given me a space and acted as a sandbox to make the most of my college days, rather than having to worry about assignments & examinations.
